Routledge Welcomes The International History Review to Expanding List of History and International Relations Journals

Routledge is pleased to announce that from 2010 it will be publishing the prestigious journal - The International History Review. The Review is the only English-language quarterly devoted entirely to the history of international relations and the history of international thought. Since 1979 the Review has established itself as one of the premier history journals in the world, read and regularly cited by both political scientists and historians.

After 30 years editing the Review, Edward Ingram is to pass the baton on to Lucian Ashworth (University of Limerick, Ireland) and Andrew Williams (University of St Andrews, UK). The book review section will be edited by Gaynor Johnson (University of Salford, UK). The Review also maintains an international Editorial Advisory Board of leading experts in the field.

Dr David Green, Global Publishing Director of Routledge Journals, said: "We are delighted that The International History Review will now complement our comprehensive range of journals in this area. The title is a leader in its field and we are pleased that it has joined one of the strongest lists in Routledge. We are also confident that the new editorial team will ensure the Review maintains its reputation for publishing only the highest quality material."

The International History Review joins a strong list of journals now published by Routledge in the areas of history and international relations, including: American Foreign Policy Interests; Cold War History; Diplomacy & Statecraft; European Review of History; First World War Studies; The Journal of Imperial and Commonwealth History; The Journal of Israeli History; The Journal of Strategic Studies; The Round Table; Security Studies; Survival; and The Washington Quarterly.

About the Journal

The International History Review publishes articles exploring the history of international relations and the history of international thought. The editors particularly welcome submissions that explore the history of current conflicts and conflicts of current interest; the development of international thought; diplomatic history; the history of international relations theory; and the history of international organisations and global governance.

Volume 32, 2010, 4 issues per year.
